ABSTRACT

المعبود بابف(ى) فى الديانة المصرية القديمة

تهدف هذه الورقة البحثية إلى جمع المعلومات المتاحة الخاصة بالإله بابف(ى) لتحديد الشخصية الحقيقية لهذا الإله الذي كان واحدًا من الآلهة الثانوية وكان نادر الظهور سواء في النصوص أو المناظر على الرغم من وجود كاهنات له، مما يشير إلى وجود تأثير له في المجال الديني. هذه الورقة هي أيضًا محاولة لتحليل الأشكال المختلفة لاسمه ودلالته، وأيضًا تحليل دوره في الديانة المصرية القديمة من خلال إشارات في نصوص الأهرامات، نصوص التوابيت، الكتب الدينية ومختلف النصوص التي ذُكر فيها الإله، بالإضافة إلى الكاهنات اللاتي ارتبطن بخدمته.

[EN] The present paper aims to collect the available information concerning the deity Bapef (y) to determine the real character of this minor deity who was rarely attested in texts and scenes although his clergy has been documented which means that he had an impact on the religious sphere. This paper also attempts to collect and analyze the various forms of his name and its significance, and to analyze the role of Bapef (y) in Ancient Egyptian religion through indications in the Pyramid texts, Coffin texts and the individuals' monuments, religious books and various texts where the deity is mentioned.

KEYWORDS: Bapef (y), Evil, Great Lake, Priestess Ram, Pyramid Texts, Soul.
I. INTRODUCTION

In Ancient Egypt, there were many major gods which are well-known to us. In addition to these major gods, the ancient Egyptians believed in various other kinds of supernatural beings which were often included in the category of minor deities. The earliest religious writings are peopled with dreadful beings (especially underworld monsters and demon-like creatures), and throughout ancient Egyptian sources, there are references to demons and spirits which seem similar to the djinns and afris (ghosts). Although the ghosts, or spirits, of the dead persons were also feared by the ancient Egyptians and were known as akhu, but also the most terrible or at least most frequently feared creatures were the messengers, while the bau of deities were sometimes beneficial to the dead. The Egyptologists commonly used to give these creatures the name «demons». They were associated with caves, gates, tombs, lakes and pits of the underworld; the majority of these demons might be called «denizens of the netherworld». Bapef (y) is considered one of these obscure and minor beings. Although Zanee and Hornung gave brief commentaries, Ward also gave some worthwhile notes about the references to the deity in the Pyramid Texts, Coffin Texts and Books of the Afterlife with a discussion of the phrase «imi dšr.f» which referred to Bapef (y) in the Pyramid Texts and Coffin Texts. But there is no specific or comprehensive study of the essence of that deity, so this paper will attempt to demystify the minor deity.

II- NAME

The full writing of the name of deity B3pf(y) has been translated traditionally by Hart, Wilkinson, Faulkner and others as «that soul» using the translation of b3 as «soul» is hardly be accepted, but with regard to the other forms and translations of the word b3, it can be a ram especially if we consider the following epithets and titles:

A) the sacred ram « b3 nb ddt »: (ram of Mendes).

B) b3 nh: (the living ram) as the incarnation of various gods.

C) b3 n pt (ram of the sky) / b3 nb pt (ram the lord of the sky) two indications of Amun.

So, it is better and logical to translate (ba) as ram, particularly with regard to forms that were frequently used in the name of the deity as the ram sign was used in most forms and representations of the deity. Rams were associated with (ba) which was associated with the solarised and reborn Osiris.

The second part of the name is the demonstrative adjective Pf/ pfy (that), which sometimes indicates dread, hostility or evil and disdain:

1- In Coffin Texts (74)

«pfy (that) who has acted against you».

2- In P. TURIN 1993 [nineteenth dynasty]

The Royal Decree of Osiris Khentiementu

«If the removal of hfty (enemy), pfy (fiend/ demon) and so on is delayed - then the enemy of the heaven will split asunder…».

3- In P. LEIDEN I 348 (nineteenth dynasty)

A Spell of the mh- Dish for the remaining of the Heart on its place

«… oh gods, who run in front of Ra bark who establish heaven for Ra and the earth for Geb, come to see what the hfty (enemy), pfy (fiend/ demon), mt (dead male), dead female has done…».

Another conjuration of the head

«oh, hfty (enemy), pfy (fiend/ demon), mt (dead male), dead female, male antagonist, female antagonist, do not fall upon the head of (N)… »

A Headache Spell

«Backwards, hfty (enemy), pfy (fiend/ demon), mt (dead male), dead female and so on who cause this pain (suffering) to (N)…, Oh (N) son of (N) Ra opens your body and keeps your flesh alive. His members are alive, but your poisons are blocked. You will not open your mouth; you will not take in fluids of an evil-faced one, hfty (enemy), pfy (fiend/ demon), mt (dead male), dead female and so on who cause evil…, Break out that which you have taken in as all kinds of bad things of hfty (enemy), pfy (fiend/ demon), mt (dead male), dead female and so on. For (N) son of (N) has arisen as Ra; his safeguarding is that eye of his, this safeguards him against evil, against all evil harms, against anything bad and hidden of hfty (enemy), pfy (fiend/ demon), mt (dead male), dead female and so on…»

A Spell of drinking Beer

«Hail to you, lady of Hipt when he has set his heart (on it), there is no restraining Seth, when he sets his heart…in order to bear away the heart of hfty (enemy), pfy (fiend/ demon), mt (dead male), dead female and so on».

12 Hornung indicated that it can be compared with the Latin word: «iste» which often has an unfavorable connection. HORNUNG 1963: N°. 212.; LEE & et Al 1968: 972.

13 DE BUCK 1935: vol.1, 308f.

15 BORGHOUTS 1971: N°. (35) vs. 11 (9); N°. (9) rt. 4.3; N°. (13) rt. 6,4; N°. (24) rt. 13, 3-5.
In the previous magical texts, pfy or sometimes pfty as in the pLeiden I 348, we can notice that pfy is used in conjunction with evil and hostile beings (ḫfty, mt and other). It was also used as a designation of Seth:

4- On the Base of the Magical Statue of Leiden (Ptolemaic Period)

«I’m Isis, pregnant with her fledgling, bearing Horus divine, and I gave birth to Horus, the son of Osiris… I hid him and concealed him for fear of that (pfy) (evil) one, …».

Here, it was used as an indication of Seth as the enemy of Horus.

5- In P. Louvre 3129 of Pasherinmin (Ptolemaic Period)

«He brought the head of pfy (that), the wastrel».

Concerning the previous references, it is clear that the translation of the name of B3pf

(*y) is «That ram», and it seems that the scribes preferred to use a non-specific name by adding pf than use the real name of that deity. This may be an implication of fear, pain, woe or taboo of using the real name.

THE DEITY B3PEF (y) IN ANCIENT EGYPTIAN RELIGION

By analyzing various forms of the spelling of the god name:
A. On the Old Kingdom forms, the spouted pot ꢗ which gives phonetic (b321) was frequently used and it was superseded later by ﬀ,  and ﬁ, while on the PT 1930a of Neith two pot signs have been shown together. Ward22 indicated that the name of the deity is always spelled with the ba-ewer or the standing ram until the mythological texts of the New Kingdom use a ba-bird. This may not be entirely correct, because for spelling the name on PT 334 a of Teti, see [Table 1] the ba-bird is used with the ba-ewer. He also mentioned that using the ram indicates the meaning «supramundane power» which is also applied to using the ba-ewer and the seated god.

B. These pots and vessels completely disappeared in the forms of the Greek-Roman, when the sacred ram was used or rarely the Jabiru bird23 which is attested only once during the Old Kingdom24 and it is not attested in the Middle Kingdom forms which indicates that the translation of B3pf(y) «that ram» could be more accurate and probable than «that soul». In the Amduat of Ramesses III, the bee «bity» is used for the word «b3». This may, however, be a scribal error.

C. The determinative sign of the god was frequently used since the beginning of the Saitic and Greek-Roman periods.

D. The demonstrative adjective pf was used until the late New Kingdom (tomb of Ramesses IX) when the scribe began to use pf(y) and it was still in use until the Greek-Roman period.

E. Although the most common name of the deity is B3pf(y), there are two variants of the demonstrative pronouns:
1. «B3pn»: the demonstrative pn «this» which indicates something nearby, was used rarely instead of pf in the deity name, as in the Book of the Night of Ramesses VI 25.

2. «B3pw»: the demonstrative pronoun pw, which can also mean «this» and was used later as an adjective26, was rarely attested. It was used in the deity name in the Book of the Night on the sarcophagi of Analmani and Aspelta from Napata27. Although the letter «w» was omitted, Doll28 and Soukiassian29 read the pronoun as p(w).

Regarding the previous examples of two variants of the name of B3pf (y) by using two different pronouns, we can say that they were rare cases attested only in the times of the New kingdom and Saitic period in Napata. But in any case, we cannot deny that they indicate the same deity.

23 GARDINER 1957: 470.
24 SETHE 1908: 334 a (Teti pyramid). Ward mentioned that ram or the ewer only used for ba till the mythological texts of the Empire. WARD 1978: N. 232, but with regards to (PT 334a of Teti), the scribe used the bird for the first time.
26 GARDINER 1957: 85.
28 DOLL 1978: 99-100.
III. ICONOGRAPHY

Although the name of the deity Bapef (y) was mentioned in texts since the 4th dynasty, there are no figural representations of the deity until the beginning of the New Kingdom when the deity was attested in the Books of the Afterlife (Amduat, Book of the Night and Day and The Book of the Night). In these cases, it may refer to the fear of representation of this being; on the other hand, it may refer to the nature of Pyramid Texts and Coffin Texts, which rarely employ vignettes and representations.

The deity Bapef(y) was depicted in three main forms:

1- As a standing wrapped mummy with a long beard:

2- As a standing mummy figure, with two bulls' horns on his head and short or long beard.

30 The vignettes accompanied religious texts attested for the first time in CT 466. De Buck 1954: vol.5, 359. A small bark is shown, and was the only case dated to the period before the New Kingdom. Munro 2017: 49-66.
3- As an anthropomorphic, crioecephalic deity. In Dendara temple\(^{31}\), he is shown with an atef crown on his head and holding a knife in both hands, while in the 5\(^{th}\) hour of the Amduat\(^{32}\), he was shown without any attributes.

Through the previous different forms of the deity, he was shown as a wrapped-mummy form during the end of the New Kingdom. During the New Kingdom, he was depicted a living human wearing a short kilt, crioecephalic, which was still used during the Greek-roman period. Here the deity is shown as a guard and holds two knives. In the wrapped-mummy figure the deity was depicted with the horns of the bull. We cannot suggest that was a mistake by the artist as it was repeated several times and in the Amduat, the two forms (wrapped-mummy with bull horns and living human with a ram head) were shown together on 3\(^{rd}\) and 5\(^{th}\) hours\(^{33}\).

The Deity B3pf (y) in Ancient Egyptian Religion

CT 67

Im n sn ipt m r pr-B3pf (y)
May they not take you along to the House of Bapef (y).

The same passage occurred also on the Tomb of Senenmut 353:
« They shall not carry you off to the House of Bapef (y) ».

In these texts, pr-B3pf (y) was mentioned as the habitat of the deity Bapef (y). Although this place was obscure and non-specified, it was precisely that terrible and feared realm which the deceased had to pass through during his journey to eternity. Assmann described the place: « That place which was rejected by the mortuary texts, where the deceased was dead, where he spent his dead existence. It matched with the Hebrew Sheol – Mesopotamian Realm of No Return- Greek Hades- Roman Orcus. It was a land far from the divine where the rays of the nightly sun did not penetrate ». In this context, Ward indicated that there were priestesses who served the cult of Bapef (y), that his « house » and « temple » were mentioned, and that he was given a character of sorts in general, but not always an evil being. However, all the references just quoted actually applied.

2- B3pf (y) imi ši wr: Bapef (y) Who is in the Great Lake

In the two passages of Pyramid Texts (334a/ 1930a), the House of Bapef (y) was associated with a dangerous lake « ši wr ». This evil place - which the deceased has to pass in his journey to the heavens - was mentioned several times in the Pyramid and Coffin Texts. In PT 214 the dead king must take care that he doesn’t land in the lake « NN z3 kw ši gd mdw zp 4 »: O NN beware of the lake- narrate four times. In CT 68, this Great Lake was mentioned as a place where the enemies of the dead king reach « hr.sn n.k m ši wr »: they will fall for you into the Great Lake. In CT 287, the deceased hopes to be spared from it.

38 DE BUCK 1935: vol.1, 284i.
40 ASSMANN 2005: 144.
41 WARD 1978: N°, 231.
42 SETHE 1908: 136a.
43 The same meaning shown in CT 839, DE BUCK 1961: vol.7, 41.
44 DE BUCK 1935: vol.1, 291f.
45 DE BUCK 1951: vol.4, 39.
«ši wr n m33 (.i) sw»: the Great Lake, I don’t see it. In CT 839⁴⁶, the deceased was warned of the great lake: beware of the Great Lake.

The passage in PT 1931 lends details to the Great Lake which occurs as one in a series of dangerous places, which the dead king has to avoid⁴⁷. One of them is ūns⁴⁸ water which belongs to the dead. Assmann mentioned that⁴⁹: «the dead has departed this place and the continuation of his way to the eternity thus entails, first and foremost to be far away from death. This lake that the deceased must cross harbors the peril of sinking along the journey, and it is important to avoid this danger». The embalming ritual called «Crossing the lake»⁵⁰ mentioned: «this body of water», above all the dead had to survive the purification step which was represented as a lake in which the body was gutted and therefore cleansed of all deleterious substances». Bapef (y) was shown as one of the beings of the ⁹th hour of the Book of the Night, this hour which occurs in a watery area⁵¹. All these references may indicated that Bapef (y) rests on this terrible lake.

3- B3pf (y) imi dšr.f⁵²: (Bapef (y) who is in his blood)

In CT 226 mentioned:

- CT 226⁵³

For that ram who is in his blood has given to you what is in his redness.

This obscure epithet which means «who is in his blood» was applied to the deity Bapef (y). Sethe indicated in his commentary to PT 854 that this epithet refers to the red sky in the sunrise⁵⁴. Ward⁵⁵ also discussed this epithet and mentioned that Sehte’s interpretation could also be applied to the epithet which also mentioned in CT 449⁵⁶. Although it was an epithet for unnamed deity in this passage, and it could here apply to the sun in the two previous cases. Lefebvre⁵⁷ said that the red «dšr» was a hated color as it was imagined that the evil god Seth was red, while Horus was white and Osiris was black. In his iconography, the animals in which Seth is embodied are red. Faulkner⁵⁸ as well indicated that dšræ in the conflict of Horus and Seth gives the significance of anger and wrath.

⁴⁶ DE BUCK 1961: vol.4, 41g.
⁴⁷ ZANDEE 1960: 171-172.
⁴⁸ WB 1971: vol.3, 300 [8-9].
⁴⁹ ASSMANN 2005: 143-144.
⁵¹ ROULIN 1996: Pl. XIV.
⁵² For more about the significances of the word dšr see: LEBFEBRE 1949: 72-76.
⁵³ DE BUCK 1947: vol.3, 258a (T1L).
⁵⁵ WARD 1978: No. 235.
⁵⁷ LEBFEBRE 1949: 72-76.
The same sense was given also by Gunn\(^{59}\). Despite the two preceding interpretations of Sethe, Lefebvre, Faulkner and Gunn, I agree with Ward in his comment: «the spelling of the name Bapef (y) in CT III 258a confirm that the meaning of the name is (that ram), so the epithet \(\text{imi dšr.f}\) cannot refer to the red sky of Sethe or the anger/ wrath of Lefebvre and Faulkner, and it could be that scribal tradition confused matters at this point and that the epithet normally used with ba, was in this one case mistakenly applied to Bapef (y) »\(^60\). And if we suggest that the scribe intentionally used this epithet, I think it could be an indication for identification Bapef (y) with Seth especially with regarding the preceding discussion of the demonstrative pronoun (pf) which was used sometimes as reference to Seth. So, it is better to interpret this phrase according its context because it doesn’t have the same significance in each case.

4- Bapef (y) as the Guide of the Eighth Portal of the Book of the Night

Temple of Dendara\(^61\)

\[sbht hmnnwt mr ns B3pfy\]

Eighth Portal, the one whose flame is painful Bapef (y)

Temple of Dendara\(^62\)

\[ii.t \text{ḥryt-tp } 3.h3.t hr nb.s sp3-dw3t bx3 n rs.wd3 Mrt-nsrty B3pf(fy) tp b3.f ḥryt b3 dmḏ nb snḏ nṯr iwn mwt.f\]

The one who fights instead of her lord the star of the underworld comes, who defends Osiris (who completely waked up) the one whose flame is painful Bapef (fy), which is above his united ba, the lord of fear, Iwnmwtef.

5- Bapef(y) of the deceased

On the 5\(^{th}\) hour of Amduat, Bapef (y) was shown standing as ram-headed anthropomorphic deity with the epithet:

\[B3pf (y) \text{ iri mtw}\]

Bapef (y) belongs to the deceased

---

\(^{59}\) For this sense, see: Gunn 1924: 61.

\(^{60}\) Ward 1978: N°. 236.

\(^{62}\) Cauville 2000: 9-10, 224.
In this scene [FIGURE 9], there is a lady facing Bapef (y) who grabs an enemy figure with outstretched hands. Her title is: «subversive who is cutting up the dead»63. Although most of the references to this deity indicated that he was an enemy, this scene may be an indication of a beneficial role for Bapef (y) if we suppose that he defended the deceased through his epithet (belongs to the deceased). This role was enhanced by his role as a guide of the middle zone of the 9th hour of the Book of the Night in front of the bark (R V1b). Here he was the head of «ššmr» of the bark of the sun god which are beneficial and defend the sun god against his enemies64. Faulkner translated CT 22665: «drink your portion, consisting of the pure water which is issued on this plateau of citizens, for Bapef (y) (that ram) who is in his blood has given to you what is in his redness», here, Bapef (y) associated with funerary offering, which give an impression to his helpful role.

V. Priesthood of Bapef (y)

In the earliest titulary evidence for the queenship, women of the royal families have an unusual status in the priesthood of the Old kingdom. Although female members of important families during the Old and Middle Kingdoms often bear the title ḥm (t) nṯr «prophetess», it was generally the goddesses Neith, Hathor whom they served in this position. Although they were usually associated with goddesses rather than gods66, they were occasionally associated with the gods or kings, as a companion or friend to the god Horus, or as priestesses of the gods Seth, Bapef (y), Djehwty and Tjasepef any of which could be forms of the King’s appearance67.

The name of Bapef (y) was associated with priestesses since the Old Kingdom, specifically during the fourth dynasty when the title ḥm (t) nṯr B3py attested for the first time in the titularies of the queens Merysankh III and Hetepheres II, and from this time

64 Roulin 1996: Pl. XIV.
onwards, there are references to this epithet on the monuments of the queens of the Old Kingdom. It was still in use during the New Kingdom [TABLE 2].

With regards to the previous table, we can notice:

1. The title hmt(t) nfr B3pfy was commonly used during the fourth dynasty, especially on the royal family during the period of Khufu, Khafr, and Menkaure. Although Jones indicated that Hegenuhedjet (wife of Sekhemkare brother of Menkaure) held this title, there is no evidence of this because the title in question is scratched and not clear so it is not certain whether the name of Bapef (y) is present or not. Troy gave the possibility that there is another unconfirmed case for this title bearer whom was Sesheshet (wife of Teti). Professor Troy has indicated that she may have been a priestess of Tjasepef or Bapef (y). This hypothesis may lead us to discuss another issue related with the names Tjasepef and Ba (se) pef. These two different forms are:

68 Lisa Kuchman classified hmt(t) nfr B3pfy as one of the titles of religious functions which appear in the middle of the fourth dynasty. KUCHMANN 1977: 9ff.

A. Tjasepef

It was a bull deity, probably represented as early as the first dynasty and named by queens during the Old kingdom in a religious title. The name was translated as the most masculine of its kind», but an interpretation as «the masculine of its threshing floor» should also be considered (Threschen, Minfest). Tjasepef is pictorially represented as a bull on a standard, in front of him a sign that looks either like a stele or like two sloping posts. From Saqqara, there is a seal impression of the first dynasty linked with this deity whom Kees linked to a group of characters «T+ lying ram+zp» and saw in it «variant that is remarkable in terms of religious history». However, this is likely to be a title that meant something like «man of Basepef» and is to be brought together with the ram sternum already documented in the 3rd dynasty, and later also in a religious title of a kings point to grain administration, the interpretation of Zp as «threshing floor» would be supported here- but also in the case of Tjasepef.

B. Ba(se)pef

Ram of his «Tenne», was a very old harvest deity, similar to Tjasepef in the form of a bull. This deity was mentioned for the first time in vessel inscriptions from the Step Pyramid of Djoser at Saqqara. The name of the deity is drawn but with ram, not with bull, on a seal imprint of a supervisor of granary from Abydos. It is striking that except in the earliest documents it is always written without the character «z», which is why it is often referred to as Bapef (y).

1. In fact, it is not possible to be sure if the two previous forms (Basepef, Tjaisepef) are different forms of Bapef (y) or not. Helck supposed that the naming of Khamerernebti I and II as bearers of the ḫmn (t) ngr B3 pfi title by Christiane Zivie is a confusion with Tjaisepef. However, the two are probably different forms of the name of Bapef (y) especially considering the previously mentioned iconographies of Bapef (y) which show him as human-headed with two bull horns. According to the confirmed references of Bapef (y) which dated back to the fourth dynasty, Ba(se)pef is attested only in the first dynasty with ram horns, not bull’s, while Tjaispef also attested since the first dynasty and was still shown during the Middle Kingdom in bull form. All these references and indications may cause more confusion and lead us to suppose that the three different forms may be for one deity, Bapef (y).

2. There are not any references for the title hm (t) nfr B3pfy from the early beginning of the sixth Dynasty until the beginning of the New Kingdom. This may be because of the general state when the royal women started to hold administrative titles. Baud mentioned⁹⁸: «under the disappearances, one counts the divine priesthods of Djehuty, Bapef (y) and Tjaisepef, in the years doubtless at the end of the five dynasty (Merysankh IV) or at the very beginning of the sixth (Sesheshet). This is an interesting development, which shows that the queen no longer served as a priestess, at least under the guise of a certain administrative formalism».

3. By examining the cases of Merysankh III and her mother Hetepheres II who appear in the formers’ tomb where the sarcophagus of Hetepheres II has been found, Troy⁹⁰ saw that there is a high degree of identity between the titles of the two queens especially in their roles as priestesses in the cult of Djehuty and Bapef (y). This may suggest that there was a transmission of status between mother and daughter, suggesting that Merysankh functioned as priestess in the ceremonies for her mother. This phenomenon had occurred before, in the case of Khamerernebty I and her daughter Khamerernebty II who hold exactly the same titles as priestesses. These women have in common four titles of royal position which are otherwise infrequently known in the 4th dynasty⁹¹. Begelsbacher-fischer⁹² classified the priestess of Bapef (y) in group (B) which includes the deities who played a minor role in the funerary inscriptions.

4. By regarding to the nature of the title hm (t) nfr Dhwty which was misinterpreted as indicating the princesses who was the heiress, whom the king had to marry in order to legitimize the rule, Gitton⁹³ indicated that this misconception led to an assumption that the title has been applied to queens who are never recorded with it. These contortions practiced by scholars⁹⁴ to fit their theory to facts have not shown great ingenuity. Gitton’s study⁹⁵ about the queens of the eighteenth dynasty leads to the important conclusion that the title was a priestly one connected with the cult of Amun and it had no dynastic significance.

5. In the cases of the fourth dynasty’s queens, they held a title associated with Djehuty, «hm(t) nfr Dhwty» except Merysankh III. They additionally held another title related to Djehuty, «wt hst Dhwty» the great of praising of Djehuty. Djehuty like Bapef (y) has an unfavorable side as he can cause painful wounds and who be labours his victims with his knife and thus he related with Seth (PT 1999c). Djehuty is also associated with blood (PT 163)⁹⁶. Baud⁹⁷ indicated that it is probable the priesthood of Djehuty, Bapef (y) and Tjaisepef concern gods who played a particular role for royalty⁹⁸.

6. All examples of the title holders came from Memphis even in the New Kingdom, for example, queen Tiaa wife of the king Thutmosis IV. The revival of the title may refer to a special cult for Bapef (y) in Memphis during the Old Kingdom which was revived during the reign of Thutmosis IV who gave an importance to this Area.

7. There isn’t any evidence that men held this title and that may indicate that the title was limited to the royal women only.

VI. CONCLUSIONS

Bapef (y) was one of the minor and puzzling deities. This deity attested only on a few occasions, though references can be found from the Old Kingdom, Middle Kingdom, New Kingdom and Greek-Roman period. His name was shown in various forms throughout the periods which associated him with both of Ba (soul) and Ba (Ram). There are several images of the deity in semi-human form with various heads (human, ram and bull). Despite a number of references to this deity, his nature is not clear. This may be because of the paucity of evidence and references or it may be due to some uncertainly about what was intended by the name Bapef (y) which most probably means «that Ram», and if his name refers to a specific soul, or to a type of demons or underworld beings who played double roles (beneficial and harmful). Ancient Egyptian texts and scenes associated Bapef (y) with some evidence like the House of Bapef (y), Bapefy (y) who is in his blood, Bapef (y) who is in the Great Lake and Bapef (y) as a guide of the Eighth Portal of the Book of the Night. Although most texts indicate that Bapef (y) has an unfavorable nature, there are a few cases that imply a beneficial role with respect to the deceased and to the Sun-god in his bark. Bapef (y) was associated with a priesthood through the title hm (t) nṯr B3py which was common during the Old Kingdom, though attested only one more time during the eighteenth dynasty. This title was held only by royal women throughout the various periods.
